

Anita Tuladhar

Anita Tuladhar is an economist with the International Monetary Fund in Washington D.C., where she has been working recently as the desk officer for some of the central and southeastern European countries in the European Department.

She obtained her Ph.D. from New York University in international macroeconomics where she was also a Fulbright scholar. She completed her undergraduate degree in finance from the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania.

Other professional and social activities include consultancy with USAID and University of Maryland/IRIS center as well as affiliations with educational and women's NGOs in Nepal.